„Sustainable Materials in Rheology“

June 9th - 12th 2026

Confirmed lecturers:

- Prof. Andreas Wierschem, University of Erlangen-Nuremberg
- Dr. Jan Weilert, Covestro Deutschland AG
- Prof. Ulrich Handge, TU Dortmund
- Dr. Norbert Raak, Universität Kopenhagen
- Rheometry specialists from TA Instruments, Anton Paar Germany, Thermo Fisher Scientific, and Netzsch will provide equipment and supervise the practical sessions

Concept:

“die junge Rheologie” (djR) in cooperation with the German Rheological Society (DRG), Dresden University of Technology and Leibniz Institute of Polymer Research Dresden organize its third djR Summer School 2026. This year with a special focus on “Sustainable Materials”.

The djR Summer School is aimed at graduate students, PhD students, Postdocs and professionals from industry with a special interest in the rheology of Sustainable Materials.

The initiative is supported by DRESDEN-concept and additionally sponsored by TA Instruments, Anton Paar, Thermo Fisher Scientific, and Netzsch. It is therefore completely free of charge for the participants, who only have to register as members of the working group djR as well as the DRG and cover the costs of their stay in Dresden during these days.
